

There are two separate circulation systems, one to the lungs and one to all the other organs of the body.