

The average cost of developing a single drug is around £5 million.