

One way that cacti are adapted is they have leaves so they can lose water through transpiration.