

Blood plasma transports soluble products of digestion from the small intestine to other organs.