

One way that sharks are adapted is that they are streamlined to help them swim through the water.