

Body temperature rising triggers mechanisms to bring it back down to normal. This process is called positive feedback.