

A population of bacteria was added to a flask of nutrient broth. Left in a warm place, the population would continue to grow forever.