

Inoculating loops used to transfer microorganisms to the media must be sterilised by passing them through water.