

..... means meeting the needs of today's population without harming the environment so that future generations are able to meet their needs too.