

The process where a farmer chooses which animals to mate in order to produce high-quality offspring is known as breeding.