

Blood flows from the heart to the organs through veins and returns through arteries. In the organs, blood flows through capillaries.