

Increasing the world's production of biofuels may have a negative impact on food security.