

The gene for pea plant height exists as two different versions: tall (T) and dwarf (t). What is the probability of the offspring from two heterozygous pea plants being dwarf?