

Blood flows from the heart to the organs through arteries and returns through veins. In the organs, blood flows through capillaries.