

In a clinical trial, neither patients nor the scientists knew who received the real drug or the placebo until afterwards. This is an example of a ...