

Light from the Sun is the source of for most communities of living organisms.